Centrally located office perched on a bluff.

Eastern Heights Plaza is a two-story office building located in the heart of Woodbury. The brick and stucco structure was developed in 1984 to meet the city's need for a well-located professional office space, and Wellington purchased the property in 1997. Today, Eastern Heights is primarily home to specialty medical tenants like Natalis Counseling and Psychology, Midwest Eye Laboratories, and Acupuncture Woodbury.

Among the building's most distinctive features is a striking standing seam metal roof with a steep pitch that lends residential character. Perched on a bluff overlooking the Tamarack Nature Preserve and the Evergreen residential development, the property features sweeping views of the natural green spaces for which Woodbury has become known.
